When I drag an item onto my datagridview I'd like to get back the ID of that item when the "Leave" event is triggered. I have the code to get the ID of the item when it's dropped, but it is returning 0 for some reason. A: You should not be getting a 0 from this code.

If you are, then it sounds like you're not telling the DataGridView what column to use to get the ID. Read up here. This gives you a column name, and should be pretty easy to adapt to your app:

string columnName =
dataGridView1.Columns[0].Name;

This is the event handler for the drop event (in a WinForms project):

private void dataGridView1_DragDrop(object sender, DragEventArgs e) { var data = e.Data.GetData(dataGridView1.Columns[0].Name); if (data != null) {
MessageBox.Show(data.ToString()); } }

If you're planning to move to a different country then you need to take certain precautions. Why? Because moving is an activity that can endanger your security and well being.
